DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 3,4,7-10,13-15 and 17-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Glock (U.S. Patent No. 5,462,549).

Glock discloses a cutting block comprising a body having a first contacting surface, a second surface spaced from said first bone contacting surface along an axis, a perimeter surface extending between said first and second surfaces wherein said perimeter surface is at least partially curved with respect to said axis in both a direction generally perpendicular thereto and generally parallel thereto (see Figure 1 below). The body includes a plurality of slots (40). The slots intersect said perimeter surface to form an open end further including a pin (that is put into aperture 32) extending from a bottom to a top surface of said slot (shared with the first bone contacting surface and opposite second surface), wherein said pin is adjacent a central position of said slot open end having a rounded outer surface. The end surface of said slot has an actuate portion extending towards a center of said body. The cutting block perimeter is shaped to conform to a distal femur, wherein said cutting block is less than or equal to a medial-lateral dimension of an outer perimeter of the distal femur and a height of said cutting block is less than or equal to an anterior-posterior dimension of the distal femur. Also shown is at least part of each of said medial and lateral perimeters is at a greater distance from said central axis than said medial and lateral perimeters at said proximal (as seen in Fig. 3).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Glock (U.S. Patent No. 5,462,549) in view of Masini (U.S. Patent No. 6,187,010).

Glock discloses the claimed invention except for the perimeter surface being polished. Masini discloses having polished surfaces to improve visualization (Col. 4, lines 11-14). It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to construct the cutting block of Glock with polished surfaces in view of Masini, in order to improve the use of the device with better visualization.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 5,6,11,12, 23 and 24 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO-892 for art cited of interest.
